The Carl Vinson Institute of Government’s Quarterly Newsletter

January 2018

Latest News

With Institute’s help, Clarkesville experiences a renaissance

Track the progress of our work in Clarkesville from a devastating fire to the rebirth of its downtown corridor in this Georgia Magazine article...read more

Institute delivers leadership training for Brazilian government officials

Over 60 Brazilian government supervisors eagerly participated in an American-style interactive learning program the Institute delivered in its inaugural training venture in South America...read more
State-level supervisors earn Certified Public Manager® recognition

Sixteen Georgia government leaders were recognized for successfully completing UGA’s Certified Public Manager® training program that the Institute provides for local and state officials...read more

Glynn officials launch cultural exchange with South Korean county

The Institute of Government's International Center facilitated a new educational and cultural exchange agreement between leaders with Glynn County and South Korea’s Taean County...read more

DeKalb leaders enhance managerial skills via Bright Futures training

Executives and managers with the DeKalb County government are enhancing their leadership skills through the Bright Futures training program created and delivered by the Institute of Government...read more
Institute’s rural economic development handbook now available online

The handbook for rural economic development professionals that the Institute created in partnership with the Georgia Rural Development Council is now available in a digital edition and in softbound.

Read more about the digital edition.

Read more about the softbound publication.

Institute assessment informs Evans County consolidation exploration

An Institute feasibility assessment explores the ramifications of consolidating government services in Evans County and the cities of Bellville, Claxton, Daisy and Hagan...read more

Financial webinars gain national certification, online courses next

Accountants throughout the country can now earn continuing professional education credits by enrolling in the Institute’s nationally certified financial management webinars...read more

Atlanta leaders gain more informed citizen input through Institute program

Citizen volunteers were recognized for successfully completing the Institute’s new leadership training program for Atlanta’s neighborhood planning units...read more

Project presentations delivered by 3 fall semester Vinson Fellows

Fall semester’s three Vinson Institute Fellows presented the results of their undergraduate internship projects recently at a gathering of Institute faculty and staff...read more

Learn more about what we're doing!
Registration is underway for this year’s first course in the Institute’s Georgia Certified Economic Developer program. Learn more.
COAG Winter Conference
January 22-25

Georgia APWA Executive Development Conference
January 23-26

ACCG Lifelong Learning Academy
January 26

Georgia Clerks Education Institute
February 4-6

GAZA Winter Conference
February 7-9

GMA Newly Elected Officials Institute (Athens)
February 15-16

GLGPA 2018 Mid-Year Conference
February 28–March 1

GACE Spring Conference
March 7–9

GMA Newly Elected Officials Institute (Tifton)
March 8–9

ACCG Spring Training
March 15–16

GCCMA Spring Conference
March 26–28

Newsworthy Notable
J. Scott Pippin
Public Service Assistant
Strategic Operations and Planning Assistance

Scott helps Georgia communities address critical planning, land use and economic development issues, including finding ways local officials can make infrastructure more resilient to flooding while controlling flood insurance costs. An attorney, Scott helped develop an innovative way to identify potential heirs property more quickly by using computer-assisted mass appraisal data, created an interactive licensing guide for businesses, and he is developing a green infrastructure planning guide for coastal communities. Since joining the Institute in 2014, he has also helped communities strengthen their planning and zoning ordinances, community resilience and sustainability practices. Scott earned his law degree and master’s in environmental planning and design at UGA and is a certified floodplain manager.